

The following pictures are of a clay pot that was found by Douglas S. McIntosh, Archaeologist in May 2009 while doing survey work for a proposed wind monitoring / weather station in the hills two miles south of Barstow College. The name on the bottom of the pot is James Gonor.

Apparently when Douglas found the pot, he searched for the name on google.com and "Barstow High Memorial" was among the results. He then contacted me.

James Gonor was a graduate of Barstow High School, Class of 1978, who passed away Dec. 6, 1979 and is listed on the Barstow High Memorial website.

My guess is that James used the pot for target practice somewhere near Sawtooth.
